

SOUTHEAST MISSOURI
STATE UNIVERSITY · 1873

Assistant Professor (Tenure Track) or Instructor – Regular Non-tenure Track

Department of Communication Disorders

College of Health and Human Services

Primary Responsibilities

The faculty member will teach graduate and/or undergraduate course based on departmental need, interests, and areas of expertise. In addition, the faculty member may provide clinical supervision as part of the teaching load. The typical teaching load will be 12 hours instructional/supervisory load per semester with 3 additional hours for research and service for the tenure track position; the typical teaching load for RNTT is 15 hours per semester. All faculty members are expected to engage in professional development and teaching enhancement activities; provide departmental, college, and university service including advising; and engage in scholarly activity. Engagement in scholarly or service activities beyond the university setting is encouraged as part of the professional portfolio.

Qualifications

- Doctorate in Audiology or Communication Disorders or related field required for Tenure Track position. Master's Degree in Speech-Language Pathology with ongoing progress toward or written commitment to begin a doctorate in communication disorders or related field required for RNTT position. Once the doctoral degree is conferred, the RNTT position automatically converts to tenure track. (Degrees must be from a regionally accredited or internationally accredited/government certified university).
- Certificate of Clinical Competence in the area of specialization (Audiology or Speech-Language Pathology) and hold or be eligible for Missouri licensure

- Demonstrated expertise in, interest in, and willingness to teach a variety of courses; audiology, hearing anatomy, aural rehabilitation, speech and hearing science, and/or multicultural issues in communication disorders are of particular interest
- Demonstrated effectiveness in teaching, scholarship, and service
- Demonstrated ability to work effectively with students, staff, and community
- Demonstrated effective communication skills
- Demonstrated commitment to collegiality in the workplace
- Demonstrated commitment to working with multicultural populations and awareness of the issues affecting women and minorities

As a public regional university (with a graduate mission), Southeast seeks candidates with a commitment to excellent undergraduate and graduate education and student success within the framework of the teacher-scholar model. Applications of instructional technology and pedagogical research are supported through the Center for Scholarship in Teaching and Learning and the Office of Online Learning. Successful candidates will contribute to the development of innovative curricula and delivery strategies, including traditional, blended, and online formats; and, participate in initiatives promoting student success, retention, and degree completion.

Application Deadline: The position is available August 1, 2017. To ensure full consideration, applications must be received by June 1, 2017.

Required Information: To apply, submit the following items online at: <http://agency.governmentjobs.com/semoedu/default.cfm?promotionaljobs=1>

- Letter of interest addressing all position requirements and how you learned of this position
- Current curriculum vita
- Copy of current license (if available) and applicable certification (CCC-SLP)
- Unofficial copies of transcripts (official copies required for employment)
- Names and contact information for three professional references

Departmental Information: The Department of Communication Disorders includes 7 full-time and 2 part-time faculty members serving 150 undergraduate and 30 graduate students. The graduate program is CAA accredited in speech-language pathology. The department website may be accessed at <http://www.semo.edu/commdisorders/>.

University Facts: Southeast Missouri State University is a comprehensive regional state university with seven colleges and schools, 12,000 students, and a faculty and staff of over 1,100. Southeast, a moderately selective institution, offers baccalaureate, masters and specialist degrees, and participates in joint doctoral programs with the University of Missouri. Cape Girardeau, a historic city overlooking the Mississippi River, is the hub of a thriving county with a population of approximately 71,000. Serving a region of more than 500,000 people, it is the largest center for retail, medical, manufacturing, communications, and cultural activities between St. Louis and Memphis.